

Batavia Women in Business Welcome Accomplished Executive and Physician JENNIFER CRIMMINS

“Are You Bossy or a Powerful Leader?”

*Have you been called names like “demanding” or “sensitive” at work?
Did your family say you were “bossy” when you were a child?*

COME LEARN ABOUT:

- Nine nasty names women leaders (and girls) are often called.
- Reframing your interpretation of nasty names, which frees you to be the powerful leader you truly are.
- Owning your power so that you can connect rather than disconnect at work.

ABOUT JENNIFER CRIMMINS, MD, MBA, RRC:

Jennifer is a uniquely accomplished executive and physician who taps her 20 years of experience in healthcare and 10 years of experience in talent development to accelerate growth of key executives who will lead in today's changing landscape and beyond. Jennifer teaches executives how to permanently upgrade their brain's wiring for problem solving and communication through the process of addressing their own real-world business challenges. Her clients get immediate solutions as well as long-term tools because Jennifer infuses her deep neuroscience knowledge into her broad business experience. Before starting her consulting business, Jennifer worked as a practicing academic ophthalmologist and Assistant Professor of Ophthalmology at Northwestern School of Medicine. Jennifer has received four national ophthalmology awards, given numerous scientific and clinical presentations, taught surgical technique internationally, and has published 25 scientific papers. Jennifer has a BA from Cornell University, an MD from University of Chicago and an MBA from George Washington University. She holds certificates for 220 hours of training in Individual, Marital and Family Therapy from Family Institute of Virginia and is a Certified Counselor of the Gifted through the Center for Identity Potential. She is a World Association of Business Coaches Registered Corporate Coach (RCC). Jennifer is married and has two wonderful sons. She is a published memoir author, a flute player and a pastel artist.
